New Chrysanthemums for 1946

COLPRIT'S NURSERY and SEED FARM

DOVER, NEW HAMPSHIRE

Our prize winning exhibit at the fall show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in 1945, showing various kinds of vegetables grown at Colprit's Nursery and Seed Farm. Between the spokes of the wagon wheel are displayed the seeds of several of the varieties which we raise. At the left are seen the new University of New Hampshire Chrysanthemums, Sunapee and Franconia in the back and Exeter in the foreground. These mums are described and priced on the opposite side of this sheet.

The war is over. Our help is returning from the battlefields. We find that we also have a job of reconversion to do. Many changes are necessary if we are to handle the volume of business which seems to be in the offing. Our new sales and trial grounds on the main highway, Route 108, between Dover and Durham will be more convenient for transient and local trade. Here our new chrysanthemums will also be on display. We are devoting additional acreage to the production of seeds and plants.

In 1947 we will issue a new and larger catalog illustrated in color but there will be no 1946 catalog. We ask you to forgive this omission and use the enclosed order sheets which list many of our offerings. Just check the varieties which you wish, note the quantity you desire, and enclose a money order or check. All of our products come to you postpaid at the prices quoted.

University of New Hampshire Mums

While at the University of New Hampshire, Prof. W. D. Holley originated the following hardy chrysanthemums. Not only are these varieties valuable in the hardy border but they are also well adapted to florists' use. We are glad to introduce these mums and heartily recommend them to gardeners and florists alike.

SUNAPEE

This clear yellow fully double mum is a tall grower making long stems for cutting. It fills the popular demand for a hardy mum for florists' use before greenhouse varieties are ready. Planted close in outdoor beds in sheltered positions this variety gives a wealth of cutting material. Season mid-September.

Priced at 50c each.

FRANCONIA

A bronze mum of good size and substance. Of medium height and good habit and very hardy. In bloom in early September. Very desirable for bedding or florists' use.

Priced at 50c each.

EXETER

This variety attracted considerable attention at the Fall Show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in 1945. Large sized extremely double flowers of a pleasing yellow color freely produced on a dwarf plant. In season in early October. This makes a beautiful pot plant.

Priced at 75c each.

The following varieties come to us well recommended and proved very satisfactory in our trials last year.

BUTTERBALL

Large creamy yellow pompom of medium height. Blooms from late August on in great profusion. A fine bedding chrysanthemum and a very attractive pot plant.

Priced at 50c each.

REDWING

Coppery red double blooms continuously from late August till frost. This is a dwarf plant of the cushion type. One of the best of the extra early class.

Priced at 50c each.

These varieties of our own origination were omitted from the 1945 catalog because of shortage of stock. Popular demand and good report cause us to list them again this year.

OLD DOVER

This hybrid chrysanthemum retains many of the qualities of its Arcticum parent. The semi-double blooms are large and are a pleasing yellow and bronze blend. The plant is dwarf with healthy dark green foliage and is extremely hardy. It is a continuous bloomer from early summer to freezing weather.

Priced at 35c each.

ARBUTUS

The pink of the Trailing Arbutus or Mayflower is found in this large aster-type mum. The double blooms are in season from early September on. The erect growing plant is very hardy and vigorous.

Priced at 50c each.
